YAKIMA -Yakima County Public Services has announced the release of the Community Indicator Report, an annual snapshot of Yakima County's economic, social and environmental conditions.

The report tracks a wide range of frequently-requested data, such as median household income, local housing costs and home values, and educational attainment. Readers can also see where Yakima County ranks nationally, state-wide, and even by city by city within the County in a number of areas.

The 50-page report draws on U.S. Census data to provide a reliable, centralized source of data for nonprofit organizations, local governments, and community leaders who need a uniform data source for grant applications and program initiatives. Its user-friendly format will make it a go-to source for community members who want to learn how Yakima County ranks in the state and nationwide in areas that interest them.

This is the first year Yakima County Public Services has produced the report, which will be updated periodically. To view the full report, please visit: <http://www.yakimacounty.us/1715/Community-Report>
